Will Not Hang—Joe Walker Shot—Change of Time Card—By What's Atlanta—Hog Killing Weather—The Election Dec. 27—More Big Meetings.

Joe Walker shot in the thigh. Joseph Walker, of Stewart county, Tenn., became involved in a difficulty at Lafayette last Saturday night and as a result he will be unable to "get about" for some time. It seems that he went to the town very dry, and wanted liquor. He pawed his gun for the necessary fire-water and went "out on the town"—for an hour or more. On returning to the saloon he demanded the release of his property without having paid his dues. The proprietor of the house refused to give up the gun and a scuffle ensued. Town Marshal W. T. Brame happened along just in time to prevent what might have been a tragedy, and demanded peace. Walker immediately turned upon the Marshal and seizing him threw him with great violence against the wall of the store room. Walker then ran and as the Marshal recovered himself he fired at him. The ball took effect in the thigh and ranging around lodged near the knee. Walker, weakened by his loss of blood, soon fell and was taken into custody. Later along he was carried to his home in Long Hollow. Walker is considered a very dangerous man.

At last accounts the flow of blood had not been entirely stopped and he may die of his wounds.

Would Have Hung To-Day.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 20.—Gov. Brown this afternoon commuted to life imprisonment the sentence of Columbus Phelps, who was to hang at Bowling Green next Friday. Phelps killed his half-brother, Henry Phelps, to prevent him from testifying against Phelps, who was under arrest for horse-stealing.

Columbus Phelps, whose neck is thus barely saved, is fifty-eight years of age, while his victim was thirty-seven. The petition asking for the commutation of Phelps' sentence to life imprisonment was signed by many reputable citizens of Warren county.

No Interest Yet Shown.

Although an election on the question of prohibition has been ordered for Dec. 27, in the city precincts, at the instance of the "whisky men," there seems to be no interest yet being taken in the approaching contest. The prohibitionists are saying but little about their proposed plan to take a vote all over the county in January and it is liable to be abandoned. The excitement following the Jones' meeting is rapidly subsiding and it is said the wetters are now kicking themselves for calling an election that might not have been had otherwise.

Change of Time Card.

Some slight changes were made in the O. V. schedule Sunday, and the new time card is now in effect. Train No. 3, which formerly arrived in this city at 10 p. m., now reaches here at 9:40 p. m., and No. 1 arrives at 12:05 instead of 12:10. The local freight now arrives at 10:30 a. m., and leaves at 4:30 p. m., instead of 5 o'clock. The other trains leave the city on the old time.

Meeting at Grassy.

Rev. L. O. Spencer closed a meeting of two days at Grassy Presbyterian church Tuesday night. There were nine additions to the church and a general revival of the membership. Mr. Spencer is the pastor of the church and resides at Princeton, Ky. He is one of the ablest ministers of his denomination in this end of the State and delivered a series of very earnest and powerful sermons.

To Atlanta on Wheels.

Four bicycle riders press d through the city Wednesday en route from St. Louis to Atlanta on tandem wheels. They were Dave Cobourn, Jack Cobourn, A. E. Harding, and N. P. Laning. They are making the trip in the interest of a bicycle company and are professional wheelmen. They expect to reach Atlanta by Sunday night.

Slaying the Porkers.

The cold weather on Wednesday brought in a fine hog killing season and the farmers have been availing themselves of the opportunity to slaughter their hogs. Most of the hogs will be turned into pork this week, unless the cool weather should end too soon.

Hon. John D. Clardy, Congressman for this district, will leave tomorrow for Washington to be present at the assembling of Congress on Dec. 2.

A New Colossal Cave.

BROWNVILLE, Ky., Nov. 17.—The Colossal Cave recently discovered in Edmondson county is an interesting revelation of the famous Mammoth cave, if indeed it really does not surpass Mammoth in points of interest and magnificent scenery. This cavern, so far as known, was first entered by Pike Chapman, Aug. 15, 1895. Dr. L. W. Hazen, of Bowling Green, is the principle owner and manager of the property. The entrance opening to this cave is two and one-half miles east of Mammoth and nine miles from Cave City. A stream, supposed to be the head waters of Echo river, flows through the cave, and a number of springs are found. Names have been given the principal avenues, domes, etc., as follows: Grape avenue, Bridge of Sighs, Piano (effect in form that emits a musical sound), Angel's Rest, Old Man and His Darlings, Jeff Rock, Triple Dome, Cross avenue, Colossal Pit (187 feet deep), Napoleon's Dome and Rock of the Rocky Mountains, Large Coffin (perfectly formed), Phosphate Mountains, Elmore's Rest, Mrs. Hazen's Rest, Fall of Babylon, Temple of God (180 feet wide and 400 feet long), Seventh avenue, Chamber of Diamonds, Rock Island, Proctor's Vineyard, Egyptian Arch, Underwood's Hall (90x50 feet), Pearcy Pool, Jim Hunt's avenue, and Staletite avenue. Only temporary arrangements have yet been made for the accommodations of visitors, but a large hotel is being erected, and a restaurant opened within the cave. A number of people from almost every section of the United States have been in the cave, but to Mrs. Jane Bell, of Boston, falls the honor of having been the first woman to enter the "Colossal Cave."

Frightful Boiler Explosion.

Vanceburg, Ky., Nov. 17.—Twenty miles south of here yesterday afternoon a boiler at the mill of George W. Stamper, Jr., of this city, exploded, killing two men and seriously if not fatally injuring several others. Cecil Kidwell, the engineer, was killed outright, his body being carried a distance of 100 yards and horribly mangled. Watson Price was also instantly killed. John Edwin received fatal injuries and six persons, whose names are not yet known, were badly scalded.

South Christian Items.

OAK GROVE, Nov. 20.—Everything is exceedingly quiet around here since the election. Our politicians have gone to work, and seem to be enjoying life as much since as before the great Republican landslide.

We are now having a much needed rain, which is calculated to bring up the wheat that was recently sown.

A child of Mr. R. L. Nichols is very ill of typhoid fever.

Mr. Morgan Hopson continues very ill.

Mrs. Ned Hatcher, of Nashville, is visiting Mrs. Jesse O'Neill.

Mr. Phil H. Allenworth will leave in a few days for Atlanta, Ga., where he will remain for some time visiting the Exposition. Several others from around here will go later on, they are: Messrs. Douglas Bell, John Garnett, Benjamin Williams, Witt Barbee and Miss Willie Mae Rivers.

Miss Bertha Barrow, of Owensboro, Ky., who has been visiting Mrs. Morgan Hopson recently, is now the guest of Miss Nell Fox, of Howell.

The theory of Mr. Allenworth has been visiting in Louisville for some time. He will return home soon.

Several of our young people attended a magic lantern show at Elmo on the 9th inst. They expressed themselves as having been highly entertained.

Mr. R. W. Williams and Miss Willmott Moore visited friends at Elmo last week.

Mr. J. F. Allenworth leaves to-day for Central, Ill., where he will be for some time dealing in wheat.

Mr. Austin L. Gray, of Hopkinsville, was here on the 14th inst. for a short time. He was on his way to Clarksville.

Mr. T. A. Williams, who has been confined to his bed for some time, is now able to sit up. We hope to see her well again soon.

Mrs. Ed Dabney is slowly improving.

Mr. J. W. Jones was the first to kill hogs in this vicinity. Nov. 11th he killed fifty three very fine ones. He also has about as many more that are quite pretty, that he will feed a while longer.

The theory of Mr. Allenworth has been visiting in Louisville for some time. He will return home soon.

NINE STORES BURNED.

BLOCK OF BUILDINGS IN MADISONVILLE DESTROYED.

Square North of the Court House—The Buildings Were Old and Burned Rapidly—Loss $100,000, Partly Insured.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Nov. 20.—A fire raged here from midnight until 5 this morning, and the estimate of the loss on property occasioned is $100,000, on which there is only partial insurance. A large part of the business section is a mass of blackened debris.

The fire originated in Bailey & Co.'s dry goods and grocery house, but just how is not known. The stock in this store was insured for $10,000. The loss is $13,000.

J. B. Leigh's grocery store was damaged to the extent of $9,000. The insurance is $1,700.

C. H. Smith's notion and fancy store was burned. The loss is not known. There is some insurance.

Ben Slayton's grocery; loss $2,000; no insurance.

Grocer John Harvey's loss is between $4,000 and $5,000, with no insurance.

Ross Bros' vacant store and grocery were burned, and their loss will reach $2,000; only partially insured.

Mr. Jones' private boarding house was destroyed, but the furniture was saved. No insurance.

On C. Harris' boot and shoe store, which was burned, there was no insurance. Loss not estimated.

Charley Bourland, saddlery and harness, loss about $3,000 by the fire.

Special Thanksgiving Service.

A special Thanksgiving service will be held at the Episcopal church, on next Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, by the Local Union of Christian Endeavor. Before the devotional exercises, the business will be attended to, and it is important that all the members be present. A program has been prepared, but it is desired that all Endeavorers "take some part aside from singing." The topic is "Praise and Purpose." Surely every Endeavorer should come prepared to testify to God's goodness during the past year, and to promise more service in the future. Let everybody come. The program is as follows:

Silent Prayer.
Doxology.
Bible Reading, Psalm 116: 1-19.
Prayer—Asking God to make us more grateful for his many blessings.
Hymn.
For what blessings are you most grateful? Personal testimonies.
Prayer—Thanking God for the privilege of testimony of his goodness.
Hymn.
What blessing does our C. E. Society bring us?
Response from members.
Sentence—Prayer—Asking God's blessing on all C. E. Societies.
Hymn.
Prayer—Asking that each Endeavorer may give as a thank-offering more service to God during the coming year.
Rev. King.
Question—Inspired by the thought of God's goodness, what is your purpose for the coming twelve months?
Answer by singing (kneeling) Miss Haverag's Consecration hymn.
"Take my life and let it be."
Benediction—Rev. J. W. Mitchell.

Seth Low Is a Busy Man.

Seth Low, besides attending to his duties as president of Columbia college, has a large private fortune to look after. Is a member of the board of rapid transit commissioners and is active in reform politics, being now one of the chief negotiators for a reform ticket. He also finds time to teach a Bible class. President Low attends Rev. Dr. Rainford's church, St. George's, and in the parish house of his church he conducts a Bible class which is attended by about 60 young men. Mr. Low is simple in formal and unassuming in all he does, whether he is presiding over Columbia college, making a political address, or giving away $1,000,000, and he carries this characteristic into his Bible teaching.

No Doubt about Her Meaning.

"Ocher up, old man. A woman's 'No' often means 'Yes,' you know." "But she didn't say 'No.' When I asked her if she would marry me she said 'I will, I don't think.' She said 'I will, I don't think.' She said 'I will, I don't think.'"

MATRIMONIAL.

EDMONDS-GREEN.—Mr. S. A. Edmonds and Miss Mary Green were married Tuesday afternoon, the 19th inst., at the home of the bride's parents near the city. Rev. R. S. Carter, of the Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. After the marriage the bridal party proceeded to the residence of Mr. N. B. Edmonds, brother of the groom, where a reception was tendered. Later in the evening Mr. Edmonds and his bride repaired to the Phoenix Hotel, where they have taken rooms and board.

Mr. Edmonds is a popular young commercial traveler, a representative of the clothing house of Bray & Landrum, Louisville. He has built up a fine business for his firm in the territory assigned him and is one of the most successful and popular of Hopkinsville's many clever drummers. His bride is the oldest daughter of Mr. Geo. V. Green. Her many lovely traits of character, beauty, accomplishments and sweetness of disposition have made her a favorite with the residents of the young couple have the best wishes of a host of friends for their future happiness and prosperity.

HEAD-BUCKNER.—Mr. Henry F. Head and Miss Minnie F. Head, of Henderson, Tenn., and Miss Louise Buckner, the daughter of Mr. E. G. Buckner, the banker, of Owensboro, were married Tuesday night. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, after which the bridal couple left for an extended tour.

ROPER-STAMPER.—Mr. Jasper Roper and Miss Effie Stamper, both of Lafayette, eloped to Weaver's Store, Tenn., and were married Sunday this week. Rev. Israel Joiner, of Bennetts-town, who accompanied them on the happy mission, officiating. The dance will be on Monday night.

MCDONNELL-WATKINSON.—Miss Nina Pauline Whittinghill, daughter of Mr. John S. Whittinghill, of Madisonville, will be married on Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 28th, to Mr. Al G. Lendon, of Waco, Tex.

MOSS-LEWIS.—Mr. E. E. Moss and Miss Lewis, of the Pee Dee neighborhood, were married last Saturday. The groom is a prominent farmer about 60 years of age and the bride a young lady still in her teens.

CASH-CRICK.—Mr. J. C. Cash and Miss Oule Crick, both of near Crofton, were married Wednesday evening. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents.

CONNELLY-POOL.—Aaron Connolly and Miss Minnie Pool, both of Bowling Green, eloped to Clarksville, and were married in the parlors of the Arlington hotel.

BARNES-DRAKE.—Mr. Charles K. Barnes and Miss Laura Drake, both of Clarksville, were married Sunday and left on a bridal tour through the South.

BOYD-BOTD.—Mr. Mark H. Boyd and Miss Ida B. Boyd, both of the Kelly neighborhood, were wedded Tuesday evening.

Mr. Tandy Hart and Miss Maggie Steele, of Daviess county, ended a courtship of fourteen years by getting married last Tuesday.

The wedding of Mr. A. Jones and Miss Sallie Sivilly, announced last Tuesday, will take place Dec. 4th, instead of Dec. 5th.

Deputy Sheriff Robertson, of Murray, came to the city Tuesday to bring a patient to the asylum, and staid long enough to make the acquaintance of a number of our people. He paid a pleasant visit to the Kew-Stueckian office, which is one of the principal places of interest to all visiting strangers. We found him to be an intelligent well-informed young gentleman, but like most Democrats he could not conceal his disgust when the subject of politics was mentioned.

She Was a Whopper.

SPENCEVILLE, Ohio, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Lydia Bitters, whose death was reported in the Enquirer of yesterday, was buried today. The funeral was to have been made yesterday, but the non-arrival of the specially constructed casket made the postponement necessary. The funeral was a curious people, who viewed the corpse, and yesterday the residence was thronged all day long. It required 10 men to handle the enormous casket, with its immense weight—four on each side and at the head and foot. Mrs. Bitters' weight was 397 pounds. She was the mother of a family of 14 children, 11 of whom are living.

A Mob In Pursuit.

ABLAND, Nov. 17.—Marshall Black, colored, and Bertie Wooten, a white girl and daughter of a prominent farmer near town, eloped to Ohio last night and were married. Black's brother Jim worked for the Wooten girl's father, and he suspected his black brother and the girl got away. The Wooten brothers met Jim coming back from Ohio to-day, and they shot him to death. The brothers and a posse are after Jim Black, and he will be hung when found.

A Physician Talks.

THE REMARKABLE STORY AND AFFIDAVIT OF DR. LEWIS BLUNDIN.

Afflicted with Paralysis for Twenty-five Years—A Case of World-Wide Interest.

(From the Philadelphia Times.)
Lewis D. Blundin was born in 1814 at Bridgewater, Pa., and is now a resident of Hopkinstown, Pa. He went through the war as private, sergeant and hospital steward of Company C, 20th Pa. Volunteers. As a result of an attack of typhoid fever in 1861, his kidneys became affected and this finally developed into renal disease, which lasted through his army service. In 1862 he was mustered out and entered Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, as a student from which he graduated two years later. The remainder of the story is best told in his own words:

"One day, after I had graduated, I was lying on a sofa at my home in Honesdale, when I felt a cold sensation in my lower limbs as though the blood had suddenly left them. When I tried to move them I was horrified at the discovery that I was paralyzed from my hips to my toes. The paralysis was complete and a pin or a prick of the flesh caused no pain. I could not move a muscle. I called in Dr. William C. Todd, of Philadelphia. He made an exhaustive examination of my case, and announced that my trouble was caused by inflammation of the spinal cord, and that I would likely have another attack of paralysis."

"I consulted Dr. L. W. Gross and Dr. Pancoast of Jefferson College, Philadelphia, and Dr. Morehouse, of Philadelphia with the same result.
"One day last September I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I had always been troubled with a sort of vertigo after my first attack of paralysis to such an extent that when I got out of my bed my head would swim and I had difficulty in saving myself from falling. My appetite was bad, digestive organs ruined and no assimilation of food. In addition to my many other ailments, rheumatism held a prominent place. By the time I had finished the first box of Pink Pills I was comparatively free from these minor ills. First one ailment disappeared, then another until the pills got to work upon the foundation stones of my trouble—paralysis. Before I had taken the six boxes of pills, I was sitting in my chair one afternoon, when I felt a curious sensation in my left foot. Upon investigation I found it had flexed, or in other words, become movable, and I could move it. From that time on my improvement was steady and it was not long before I was walking around on crutches with little or no discomfort. It was three years before taking the Pink Pills that I had been able to use the crutches at any time; and I feel sure that Pink Pills have done me more good than all the doctors and all the medicine in the country and as they are not costly I can easily afford the treatment."
Sworn to before me this 10th day of May, 1895.

HYPNOTIZED INTO SICKNESS.

Remarkable Little Girl Who Acts Like a Paralytic at a Word.

The most astounding instance of hypnotism by suggestion comes in a report furnished to the French Society of Hypnology and Psychology by M. Gouffiche, an expert in mesmerism. This story he has to tell, says the New York World, is of a little girl of eleven in one of the French provinces who used to accompany a cousin, who was a country doctor, on his rounds, and in this way got to understand a good many medical expressions.

One day she fell ill. The illness was slight and she was on the high road to recovery, when her cousin, the doctor, happened to say unthinkingly and smilingly in her presence: "Oh, good heavens! She is paralyzed!" At once the child exhibited every symptom of paralysis and she remained in that state at the will of the doctor. Afterwards he asked her if she was not becoming consumptive, and immediately she began to suffer from the dreadful coughing and blood spitting that consumptive patients have.

She seemed so extraordinarily open to every sort of mesmeric "suggestion" that the doctor tried her with half the diseases known in medical annals, and one by one she responded to them all. He needed only to remark that she was cured to have her perfectly well a moment later. Perhaps the strangest of the experiences she went through was when one of her schoolmates got a paper pellet in her eye. From pure sympathy the child imagined that she had the same trouble too, and she rubbed her eye to such an extent that she felt the pain of it for nearly a year.

BEES AT ASCOT.

They Made Things Lively at the Race Track for Awhile.

A curious incident occurred at Ascot, says the London Telegraph. While a large number of pleasant luncheon parties were enjoying the delights of an open-air repast in the gardens behind the grand stand a great swarm of bees settled down on the guests around a table in a corner. They buzzed and buzzed everywhere. Ladies had been in their bonnets and gentlemen found their hats turned into striking likenesses of "Catch-em-alive-oh's." Some of the swarms settled on the cold salmon, and other members of it tumbled into the champagne cup. In fact, the bees created the greatest consternation among the ladies and gentlemen in that quarter of the grounds.

They were gradually drawn off the luncheon party by a gentleman, to whom occurred the happy idea of treating them to a little music on a metal tray under a tree. After the tapping or tinkling on the article had continued for two or three moments the queen bee settled on the branches above to listen to it and was at once followed by all the swarm. It was an extraordinary sight to see hundreds of the insects hanging like great black and gold clusters on the tree while the tinkling continued. It ceased with the luncheon and the bees did no harm.

In the earlier part of the performance a lady was pretty severely stung.

ELEVATING THE GROWLER.

How the Workmen on Tall Buildings Have Their Beer Sent Up to Them.

Walking along in front of a tall apartment house the other day in which the fitters are at work, says a New York Herald writer, I was startled to see flecks of foam floating down at my feet. It had been looking like rain, but inasmuch as I had never seen it rain beer before I stood aside to see where it came from. A sharp whistle from a man on a high scaffolding is what I heard, and what I saw was a conventional "growler" swinging at the end of a rope. The man on the scaffolding lay face downward and gently swung the foaming can toward the window below. Presently two workmen came to the window, clutched the liquid messenger of peace, drew it in, took a deep swig from it and carefully launched it into the air again. The same operation was gone through with at a window of the third floor. Then the almost empty "growler" was drawn rapidly up and received its finishing touches on the scaffolding above.

"That's a right clever way to manage a drink," said to the workman below.

"Well—yes; when they drink fair," he replied, with the air of a man who had been cheated out of his allowance.

Robbers Slit to Pieces.
Eleven members of a gang of robbers who had been infesting the silk district of Chekiang, China, were captured at a mountain town recently while occupied in bathing in the mountain stream that runs past the town. The townsmen surrounded the bathers, and, having bound them, set to work to slice their prisoners piece by piece, in revenge for the death of some of their townsmen at the hands of the band last winter. After the horrible deed was accomplished the fragments of the bodies of the wretched robbers were thrown into their own boat and it was allowed to drift down stream. The timidity of the mandarins, who dared not punish the robbers for fear of the vengeance of the rest of the band, was the reason why the townsmen did not take their prisoners alive and hand them over to the authorities.

The Clarke Tobacco Leaf Chronicle goes out of its way to say some unkind things about Gov. Brown, in connection with his recent passage of words with Billy Newhall. The effort to put the blame of that affair on Gov. Brown and make a hero out of young Newhall is not justified by the facts. Apropos to the subject, however, the Frankfort Capital has this to say:

"Their friends will be glad to learn that all differences between Governor Brown and Mr. W. H. Newhall, Jr., have been amicably settled, upon terms honorably satisfactory to the parties immediately concerned and all of their friends, and friendly relations have been fully restored between them."

Governor-elect Bradley's family consists of a wife and one child, a grown daughter. Mrs. Bradley was Miss Margaret R. Duncan, daughter of Dr. B. F. Duncan, of Lancaster. Col. Bradley was married July 11, 1867, when a little more than 20 years of age. Two children were born to him, but his only son died as he was entering manhood a few years ago. His daughter, Miss Christine, is now completing her education at Hamilton Female College, Lexington, Ky.

Mr. Poor, the fusion member of the House from Pendleton, is in danger of getting himself into unpleasant notoriety. He was elected by Populists, Republicans and Alliance men. The Alliance men are said to be indignant at Poor's promise to support a Republican for Senator and the Populists will also do some vigorous kicking when his vote is given to a monometallist.

The demonization of the Democratic party seems to be complete. Some of the administration Democrats in the House are talking of bolting the action of the Democratic caucus that is sure to give Crisp the empty honor of a nomination for speaker. The reason assigned is that Crisp is a bimetalist.

Co. Ed Porter Thompson, the present Superintendent of Schools, is preparing to contest the election of W. J. Davidson, on the ground that Mr. Davidson was at the time of his election county superintendent of Pulaski, and therefore ineligible as State Superintendent.

The Courier-Journal is responsible for the statement that less than thirty of the Democrats in the House are in harmony with the President. Grover seems to be in the position of the man who encountered eleven contrary men who persisted in hugging the jury.

So few people want the "room at the top" in Pullman sleepers that the railroads are demanding a 25 per cent. reduction in the rates for upper berths. To be sure the upper berths ought to be lower.

There seems to be no danger that the royal families of Europe will run out. A princess in Russia and a prince in Bulgaria were this week's additions to the list of heirs apparent.

The Kentuckian neglected to secure a copyright on its little joke about eliminating the "P" from Bradley's name, and the result is that the same bright idea has since struck several of the boys of the State press.

The Mills meeting in Louisville resulted in 4,000 conversions, but Louisville is full of people who have numerous sins of various kinds to repent of.

Seeing that more trouble was bruin over his Cincinnati trest, Congressman Berry appropriately concluded to go bear hunting.

They say now that a man cannot lick an envelope without running the risk of being poisoned. What else, pray, is a Democrat to lick?

The Democrats of the Fourth Louisville district have re-nominated A. J. Carroll and the Republicans have nominated Chas. A. Blatz, for the legislature. The special election Dec. 7 will be hotly contested. A special registration will be held Nov. 30.

A recent census of the departments at Washington shows that only twenty per cent of the offices have been filled with the Democrats. The other eighty per cent are held by Republicans who have not been disturbed by the powers that be.

What could be more appropriate than the appointment of Mr. Peak as minister to the mountainous country of Switzerland? He is doubtless a man of elevated character and a wide range of information.

The matrimonial epidemic is gaining headway as the season advances, and at the present rate the 1895 girls will be pretty well picked over by the end of the year.

A new Democratic paper will be started at Middlesboro' with D. E. McDowell and Geo. W. Saulsbury as editors.

A negro named Going made a murder assault on a young white woman at Frederick, Md., and now he is gone.

Col. Berry doesn't care a straw what is said about that convention drink of his. He is not a straw Berry.

Although gubernatorial elections were held in thirteen states, the peanut crop is said to be short this year.

The gold reserve is now down to $86,500,000. They've got six millions of it since the election.

Mr. Parsons, who is a well-preserved man, seventy-five years, came to Hartford when he had in 1834, and for several years was employed in the book store of Belknap & Hamersly. Noah Webster was a daily visitor to the book store. When Mr. Webster had his dictionary placed on the market the success of his effort was problematical, and much to his dismay he saw an advertisement in a New York paper offering to sell it at auction among other articles. This had a disheartening effect on Mr. Webster. He went to the store of Mr. Booth, the bookseller in New Haven.

"Are you Mr. Booth?" said Webster.

"Yes, sir," said Booth.

"Is it true," said Mr. Webster, in a trembling voice, with eyes very moist, "that you are selling my dictionaries at auction?"

"Are you Mr. Webster?" said Booth.

"I am."

"Well, now, Mr. Webster," said Booth, "I'll tell you all about it. I only bought one copy, for which I paid the full retail price. I thought I might work off a lot of unsalable stuff by putting into my sale one of your books. I expected to lose money on that, but I thought I could make it up on others." The relief that Mr. Webster experienced can be imagined. —Hartford Courant.

many nations are superstitious about sneezing, but none so much as the natives of India. To sneeze on entering a place of business, on starting on a journey, or undertaking any enterprise or adventure means bad luck for some one either physically or financially. On hearing a person, either foreign or native, sneeze in public a Brahmin will instantly cry out: "Live live!" and this cry will be repeated as often as the person sneezes. Among the native soldiers sneezing is especially regarded with superstitious terror, the maneuvers of an army sometimes being controlled by an inadvertent sneeze. A rajah at one time turned back his army from the gates of a besieged city because one of his footmen sneezed to sneeze just as he had decided to give the command to attack. A Brahmin priest was consulted and a special time appointed by him to renew the siege before it was deemed a promising undertaking. —Buffalo Commercial.

In Memory of Lizzie Gray, Who Died Nov.

6th, 1895.

One leaf has dropped from the stem of life.

One girlish voice is stilled.

Our heart has ceased to beat.

But 'tis as God has willed.

What can restore the vacant place

Which she has left in home and heart?

'Tis not a pain that vanished face,

Though it vainly aches its part.

When we cross that shining river

Where all things are bright and fair,

When we meet departed friends,

We will meet sweet Lizzie there.

The least expected is the one to go.

But God has called her home

Where there is no sorrow and no pain.

To rest forever near His throne.

And indeed that youth and bloom,

Fall in the cold embrace of death.

Should vanish, leaving in silent gloom

The heart and sense, and soul and breath.

But blessed are the dead

That die in the Lord,

For theirs is the reward

And blissful their record.

ARBITRARY GENIUS.

A Worker in Iron Who Was Anxious for His Pay.

Artists have a better excuse than most people for regretting "the good old times," when they, at least, were held in an esteem, and allowed a license, scarcely equaled to-day.

One of the most famous workers in iron was Nicolo Grosso, whose "iron jewelry" still adorns the palaces and public monuments of the city of Florence. He was a master in his own line, and indulged his eccentricities to the full. Chief among these was the very understandable one of liking to be paid promptly for what he did, and so persistently did he enforce the rule of full payment in advance, and the other half before delivery of the goods, that he acquired the nickname of "Nicholas earnest-money."

He placed before his shop window a sign representing account books in the midst of flames, and whenever anyone asked credit, even for an hour, he was accustomed to conduct him to the door, point to the sign and say: "You see I cannot believe you; I have burned my books."

Neither was he any respecter of persons. On one occasion the municipality had ordered of him, for the public office, a pair of large andirons, and, according to the rule, had deposited one-half the price in advance. The work finished, Nicholas informed the authorities that they might forward the rest of the money and take the andirons.

They immediately sent for the andirons, adding that the money would follow, but Nicholas refused to permit the work to leave the shop until he was fully paid. A sergeant was then sent with orders to say to the artist that his conduct was outrageous, as he had already received one-half of the price.

"That is true," replied Nicholas, and he handed the messenger one of the andirons.

The sergeant carried it to the au-

Gordon Field Academy.

KENNEDY, Ky., Nov. 12.—The second quarter of Gordon Field school closed last Friday and we are sorry to say that pneumonia and fever have thinned out our ranks to almost half. The absent from two homes alone making vacant ten places. Out of an enrollment of forty only four names remain punctual. However, we can look forward to the happy return of the absent, when the dark clouds of sickness and suffering have rolled away before the bright sunlight of returning health, and is forgotten in the hearty hand grasps of a welcome back. But, oh how different! how sad indeed, when this hope can not cheer the longing suspense, and we learn that from our number has gone one who can never more here on earth see again. Yet the white winged messenger of death has for the first time entered our little school, and borne away one of its brightest ornaments. On the morning of November 6th, Elizabeth Gertrude Gray breathed out her young life, like a tired child lying down to rest. For many days her desk had been vacant, for many days her good recitations had been missed, for many days her cheerful voice and happy face were not seen or heard on the play ground. During those days she lay upon a bed of anguish, and bore with Christian patience and fortitude all pain, and though the tenderest care and most watchful vigils could do naught to restore, yet, it is a sweet thought to her she had every attention that love can bestow. And who among her many friends does not love to think of her, as she so beautifully and nobly stood before the crowded house only last June, and opened the school exercises with such girlish grace and pathos. Yet with the dignity and self possession of a queen, and those who knew her not, still, and long will remember the beautiful black-haired girl, as she uttered her last words in praise of her favorite State—"Michigan My Michigan, the Water City of the Union." Scarcely fifteen summers had numbered their golden cycles for her, and we cannot understand why one so young, so gifted should be taken in the bud of youth. Why the oldest from out of the home should be called, just when father and mother needed her most, just when young sisters and brothers looked to her for aid; why was she, and not one of us taken, we can not understand at all, this, but God who knoweth all things, well, sent the white winged messenger to whisper peace, and gently bear her home. And her classmates who so tremulously and sweetly sang "Shall we Gather at the River," as they stood for the last time by that silent form had but to think of her on the other side "Where bright angels feet have trod," while they for some cause, and by God's own sweet will are left on this, to finish the work assigned them.

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrup, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curls, cures Diarrhoea and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osborn,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quick nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kitchener,
Coway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

FOR GOTHAM'S POOR.

Breathing Places to be Established in Various Parts of the City.
The lot of the unfortunate people who are compelled to live in the slums of New York City will not be so hard next summer and succeeding summers as it has been in the past. The reason is that the movement for parks for the poor, which was inaugurated by Abram S. Hewitt when he was mayor of the city, some years ago, has resulted in definite action. When the summer sun again beats down upon New York City the dwellers in the lower East side will have other shade than that of the great reeking tenements; the children will not be forced to breathe the hot, stifling air that kills them by the thousand. There will be oases of green trees in the arid deserts of the slums; instead of hot pavements as playgrounds, the babies may toddle about in the grateful shade of maples, and breathe into their

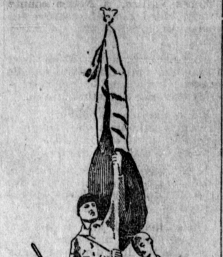

IN WASHINGTON SQUARE, NEW YORK, sensitive little lungs air that is pure and life-giving. That the poor may reap the benefits of the parks next summer the park commissioners have, according to Demorest's Magazine, already commenced the work of transforming some of the plague spots of the city into breathing places. Cherry hill, where feeble lights of life in countless numbers have begun to burn and then gone out, smothered by the hard conditions, and where there have been untold tragedies and incalculable human suffering, will be sweet with the fragrance of flowers and vegetation. The wretched tenements of Mulberry Street, the city's premier plague spot, with a long and unprejudiced record of lawlessness and misery, will offer a cool retreat and a breathing spot for thousands. A number of other small parks will relieve the monotony of the brick and stone of the East side, with the undoubted result that the condition of the poor, and particularly that of the children, will be greatly ameliorated. The promoters of the movement for the parks deserve the gratitude of all the people of the city; their work and its results are a triumph for humanitarianism and good sense in dealing with the problems to which poverty gives rise.

The heroic group of the color-bearers just completed by Richard W. Bock has brought this Chicago sculptor into prominent notice. The piece is now in view, but is soon to be cast in bronze by the American Bronze company and erected in the National park at Chickamauga as the gift of the citizens of Lancaster, Pa.

Mr. Bock began his career in Chicago as a woodcarver when a mere boy. It required but a short apprenticeship at this work to arouse all his keen artistic sensibilities and bring him to the realization that wood was too obdurate and unyielding a medium for artistic expression. In the face of parental opposition and many other discouraging obstacles, he set out with resolute de-

I have been using it at times for three years for Dyspepsia and Nervousness with the most gratifying results. I think it is due to this wonderful medicine to say that I have known a number of ministers and others who have taken it, and so far as I now remember they all speak of its curative and strengthening effects with unstinted praise. How to Prevent Croup.
Some reading that will prove interesting to young mothers. How to guard against the disease.

Croup is a terror to young mothers and to post them concerning the cause, and the symptoms and treatment is the object of this item. The origin of croup is a common cold. Children who are subject to it have a tendency to colds and croup almost sure to follow. The first symptom is hoarseness. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough, which is easily recognized and will never be forgotten by one who has heard it. The time to act is when the child first becomes hoarse. If Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is freely given at this tendency to croup will soon disappear. Even to croup with cough has developed it will prevent the attack. There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains nothing injurious. For sale by R. C. Hardwick, druggist.

TO THE MOUNTAINS.

Sing me a song of gladness
O strong and glorious hills!
My harp, attuned to sadness,
Would sound their laughing rills—
Would echo of the voices
Which live in rocky crevices.
Till harmony rejoices
The weary hearts of men.
Sing me a song of sweetness
And ease, and soft and low
From nature's grand completeness
Let gentle music flow.
Her soul dwells in the mountains
Beneath the bending line,
And chants beside the fountain,
And all her songs are true.
Sing me a song of duty,
Of courage in repose,
Of hope and strength and beauty
Amid encircling snows.
Unchanged by wild winds blowing
Undisturbed by bright dawns growing.
Undimmed by loss or gain.

Sing me of love eternal
O hallowed mountain soil!
In autumn's glowing haze
Hath felt the touch of God:
And when the forest kindles
In autumn's glowing haze
Where red and russet mingle
I read Jehovah's name.

For this, O mountains, heary!
Ring out in melody.
Thou hast repeated the story
Of earthly harmony
Sound from each rocky fastness
The life of the desert wastes
Is lifted up and blest

STANTON'S RIDE.

HIS story should interest the fox hunters, the pumper-chasers and the other hard riders of this vicinity. It is the story of the last Cheyenne war, the scene of the wild, unbroken country just west of the hills while the hill performer is Brig. Gen. Stanton, just now paymaster general of the army.

This drama of the saddle is told just as it came from the lips of the army officer who knew all about it and was there at the time.
"The Fifth cavalry, ten companies—this was before the days of troops under Gen. Merritt, was keeping an eye on the Cheyennes.
"The Sioux were on the warpath, and busy standing things civilized on their heels over to the north, and the Cheyennes were getting the fever. Good judges of Indians, with their thumbs on the Cheyenne trail, said they were liable to break out at any moment into a war spirit, just the Sioux already out, and unite their energies to sitting Bull's in toppling over the paleface of the northwest.
"So, as I have already said, Gen. Merritt was watching the Cheyennes with ten companies of the Fifth cavalry. He was to hold them in check.
"Time went on, and the Cheyennes were still quiet. Gen. Merritt and everybody else began to believe they would remain at peace. One morning Gen. Merritt concluded that all danger from the Cheyennes was over, and began to move north and west with his command.
"He got as far as the War Bonnet, when couriers overtook him with dispatches from Gen. Sheridan—at Ogish or Omaha Sheridan was telling Gen. Merritt not to leave the Cheyenne vicinity until he was absolutely sure they were quiet, and that all danger of a Cheyenne outbreak had blown by. Sheridan's dispatch said further that he had just received word from a worthy, trusty source that the Cheyennes at the Red Cloud agency were painted up for trouble, and about to leave the reservation and join the Sioux. The truth of this must be discovered, and the Cheyenne uprising were any on the carpet, must be checked. At all hazards the Cheyennes regions in the rocks, as ever slipped from the palm of the Infante.

"But Stanton and his half-breeds knew the direction to Red Cloud, and they kept it as straight as the flight of a bullet both in the daylight and the dark.
"Down hill and up, across hollow and over divides they never slackened or served. They never paused for food for themselves or fodder for their horses. Lives might be heavily staked on the game, and man and mount must go through at any cost.
"It may be that somewhere in the pigeon holes of his inner consciousness Stanton had a conviction fled away that Sheridan's line on the Cheyenne intentions was correct.
"And it may be for this reason that he dug the incessant spurs into his horse all the more deeply and rode all the more fiercely and grimly toward Red Cloud that day in the northwest. The cavalry could better spare a horse than a settler could his scalp.
"Thus concluded Stanton; and taking what they call out west 'aroad gait,' he never drew bridle rein nor slackened stride all of the long one hundred miles from the War Bonnet to the agency of Red Cloud.
"Strung out behind him came his quartet of half-breeds, running mate as foxes and bringing their horses forward as inveterately and as remorselessly as Stanton himself. They didn't, being Indians, care so much about a settler's scalp as did Stanton. But, being Indians, they cared nothing at all for horseflesh; and so came as obligately on as their leader.
"An Indian has no more sympathy for a horse than for the buffalo grass it feeds upon, and the moment the spur falls to stir the animal's flagging energies, will stick a knife in him as a bracer as readily as he would into his shoulder.
"Stanton left Merritt's camp on the War Bonnet at noon. Covered with dust and foam, feeling a bit from very weariness of body, Stanton and his four scouts came surging up to the Red Cloud agency at sharp midnight. The last mile of that rough one hundred was behind them, and they had made the trip in just twelve hours by the watch.

"Stanton was too lame and broken to even go into the agency, but sank down on the steps outside. His horse, with drooping head and shaking flanks, stood where he'd pulled him up.

"How about the Cheyennes?" was Stanton's question to those who came to him.
"They left the reservation eight hours ago and have started to join the Sioux," was the reply.
"Send me Fox, the interpreter," said Stanton, "and bring me pencil and paper to write a dispatch to Gen. Merritt."
"When Fox came, Stanton ordered him to take a couple of the agency Indians with a lead horse apiece, and be ready to start back to Stanton at once. He wrote his dispatch as he reclined on the door steps.
"Stanton told Gen. Merritt that the Cheyennes were on the warpath had started to find the Sioux over what was known as the Great Northern Trail, and suggested that if Merritt would know loose from the wagons and take only the Fifth cavalry, he could push up the War Bonnet and head them off at the crossing.
"On this Indians with two horses each were ready and started with Stanton's dispatch at half-past twelve o'clock; just twenty minutes after Stanton came in. With lead horses they had an advantage which Stanton and his four half-breeds didn't possess. So well did they use it that they rode in on Gen. Merritt at twenty minutes past eleven the same morning. They had put the one hundred miles under them in eleven hours; an hour better than Stanton.
"That's all there is to the story. It was a simple case of dispatch bearing; a case where two hundred miles over a trackless waste was covered in twenty-two hours, and that in the night. How's that for perishing flesh and blood?
"About the Cheyennes? That part is a whole lot of different matter. After Stanton's dispatch reached Merritt the Fifth cavalry was in the saddle lined out for the crossing pointed to by Stanton. Merritt got up in time. The Cheyennes came up and the battle of the War Bonnet was fought. It was the last fight the Cheyennes ever made. They were whipped and driven back to Red Cloud. Their effort to make a junction with the Sioux and get in on the war, thanks to Stanton's rough riding, was frustrated. Many a man and woman combing their hair these September mornings owe that privilege to Stanton. They may not realize it, but they do.—Washington Post.

In some northern localities the colored people believe that if a cow croaks in an odd number of times, foul weather will follow; if even, the day will be fine.
